Veteran NLRB attorney to set up shop in Spokane

The National Labor Relations Board is establishing a presence in eastern Washington with the appointment of veteran staff attorney Adam Morrison as resident agent in Spokane.

Morrison is a native of Spokane who has worked in the Agency's Portland office for the past eight years. He will report to NLRB Region 19 in Seattle, which covers portions of Montana and Idaho, and all of Washington, Oregon and Alaska. It is the Agency's largest region, with satellite offices in Anchorage and Portland.

"This move will allow us to provide prompter services in the eastern Washington area, especially in high profile cases," said Regional Director Richard L. Ahearn, who will introduce Morrison to the community Thursday morning (Jan. 14) at the Thomas Foley U.S. Courthouse, 920 W. Riverside Ave., Room 116, in Spokane. To contact the Seattle office directly, please call 206-220-6300.

The National Labor Relations Board is an independent federal agency vested with the power to safeguard employees' rights to organize and to determine whether to have unions as their bargaining representative. The agency also acts to prevent and remedy unfair labor practices committed by private sector employers and unions.
